

Molecular Literacy Institute

Summer Session 2009 :: August 3 – August 14

The Molecular Literacy Institute is a summer enrichment program for Boston-area high school students who will be taking Chemistry during the upcoming school year. The Institute is an intensive two-week course to be taught by high school teachers, university faculty and graduate students in Chemistry. The Institute is designed to give students a fundamental understanding of what is happening at the molecular level, so that they can visualize and interpret molecular models readily. This hands-on, interactive learning environment will prepare them for the challenge of high school Chemistry and beyond.

Where: Boston Trinity Academy (Boston, MA)

Time: August 3 - August 14, 10am – 2pm

Application Deadline: May 29, 2009

Eligibility: Open to Greater Boston area high school students who have yet to take Chemistry.

Tuition: $250
